

Achieving Peak Performance – DNA, Personality & Character

Are you already at the top of your game? Or do you think that you can do even better? At this talk, Dr Ernest Wong will share the brief history of human genome project, how the latest technology of DNA science can discover and identify one's innate talents, and how these innate character and talents affect the development of each individual's personality. Finally, Dr Wong will share on how by understanding the unique character of each personality type plays an important role in helping one to achieve peak performance in their respective field. Yes, you can be even better.